

RYNO[®] KINO

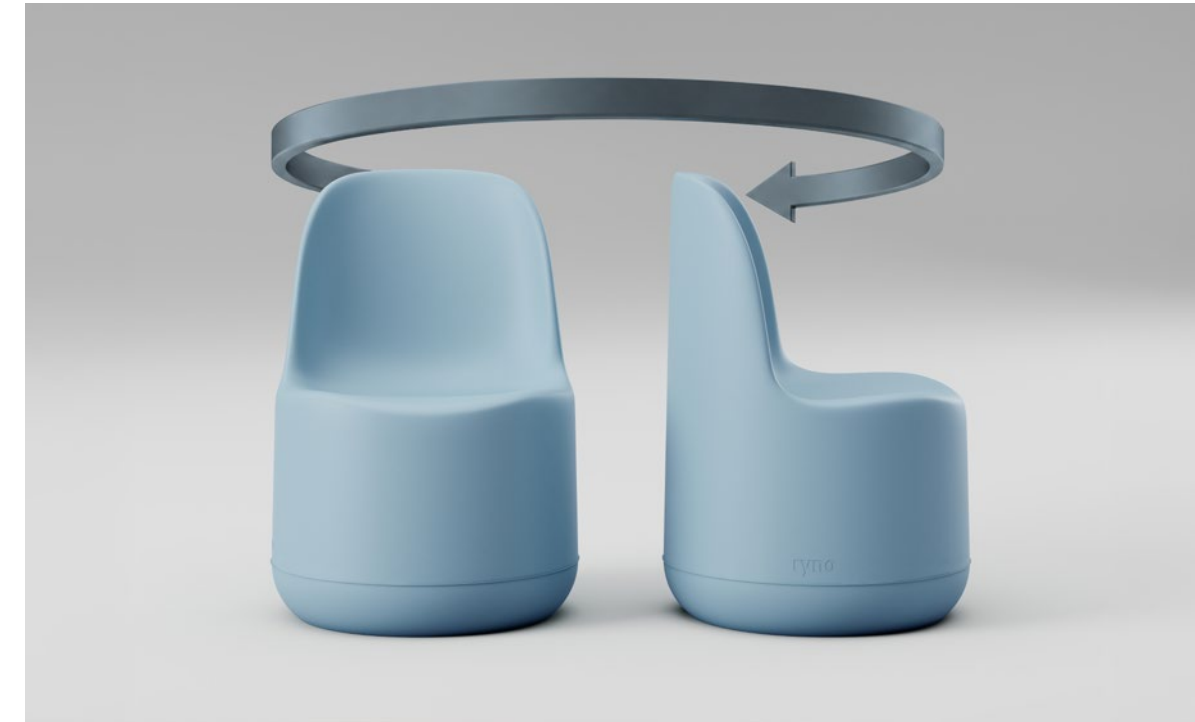

Made for movement,
designed for independence

Pineapple

When we first developed the Ryno® range, we wanted to create furniture that felt warm and welcoming while delivering dependable safety and durability. The newest addition, the Kino chair, carries that thinking forward. To improve safety, its contemporary, sculpted form is subtly designed to be difficult to pick up. Additionally, the chair features no vulnerable fixings or unnecessary gaps, helping to reduce opportunities for ligature attachment, concealment and tampering.	Its anti-bacterial surface is free from raised edges, tight corners and grooves, which makes routine cleaning easier and leaves fewer places for dirt or contaminants to collect. Kino's optional swivel function allows the chair to rotate 180-degrees. As well as providing sensory input, this movement can benefit people with reduced mobility, helping them get into and out of the chair, and do so with less assistance and greater independence.

Seating that moves with you

Kino's optional 180-degree swivel function is designed to help people with reduced mobility to move into and out of the chair more easily, especially when positioned at a table. Where staff assistance may have been previously required, Kino can help to provide greater independence.
